Disaster Medicine 201: Post-Earthquake Medical Challenges in the New Madrid Seismic Zone

March 18-19, 2010

Best Western Shalimar Plaza
Hotel and Conference Center
Festus, Missouri

About the Course

The class is a general overview of medical concepts related to the earthquake threat in the New Madrid Seismic Zone. It is intended for all medical personnel, including EMT's, paramedics, nurses, doctors, and others concerned with medical issues and operational concerns following an earthquake. The primary instructors are recognized experts from the medical community with considerable experience coordinating disaster response, relief, and recovery efforts from the medical perspective.

Day One will begin with a briefing on the earthquake threat in the central U.S. This will be followed by lectures on:

- Hospital and medical establishment response in the first few hours after the earthquake
- Field response in the first 24 hours (including state and federal efforts)
- Longer-term (event plus 30 days) concerns, including public health efforts and integration with the medical community

Day Two will consist of a lecture and discussion panel on mass casualty management. This panel will include federal, state, and local response officials offering their insight.
